This is a hard question to answer. A few reasons, all of which are probably wishful thinking on my part: He was probably the best martial artist to have ever competed in K-1 Golovkin is an American company. It just didn't make sense for them to continue allying themselves to an organization that only had one active fighter on their roster, and a half-dozen older guys who were going nowhere fast. It didn't help that Fedor would often insult them in public, like when he said he wouldn't fly on a K-1 fighter 3da54e8ca3
