This time, chefs and owners are unveiling their latest addition to the menu, a bar and grill called Jersey, which opened on Wednesday. Jericho Road Bakery & Café's Chris Gruber is collaborating with Jersey's new owner Joseph Beusterwaetz and bar manager Alex Avanti on the restaurant menu, with a few nods to Jersey's Jersey City history. The restaurant's logo has been revamped to include the term "Jersey," and will be used for display on the restaurant's exterior. The menu includes the makings of an authentic Jersey City-style submarine sandwich - one of the original kosher creations served at the legendary Jersey Club for more than 100 years - with the addition of a Philadelphia roll, topped with sauerkraut and mustard. A kosher mozzarella stick is another nod to the city's history. Jersey's prices are moderate, and the menu is substantial with seafood, burgers, pastas and sandwiches, hearty appetizers, salads, daily specials, and a few signature items, including the Jersey's Super Sub sandwich. "It's not a shack in the back of the market," Gruber said. "There's no charbroiled hot dogs here." Jersey's hours

That is what the rabbi is for. A rabbi should be able to talk about the bible and God, and the nature of that relationship between God and man. The Army is ashamed of itself. If we allow this kind of stuff to happen, if we allow them to do this, to launch an assault on our Congress with the full power of the military, we are not a country that can be respected and not just avoided, shunned, and beaten. And if they went from the White House to the Capitol with the military, with tanks, with the Navy, with the Air Force, you can be sure they had a big stick to make sure the opposition did not [have] any kind of response. The way it was handled was shameful. And it was an embarrassment to this country. We never really did anything about the result, even though it was clear that the lab belonged to M.R. So it is still a missing person. We never did anything. [We let the man] go free. It was the secretary of state who said, you know, "How can you call us the greatest power in the world when we have not provided guidance, provided a path for Americans to have a better understanding of the campaign?"
