I would like to avoid that. maybe you can help me to find another way to do it. thx a lot for your help A: There are two ways to do it. Create a method in the UserDetailsService for which you get the password and reset it. Store the password in the user details and reset it there in case of successful login. The first solution is more robust and would work in a single-user case as well. The second one on the other hand, can be done much more easily. What I would like to do is to insert a new row under the currently selected row. I currently have the code which adds the new row, but when I click to select a row, the new row is selected and the currently selected row disappears. I'm looking for a way to remove the currently selected row then add the new row so that the user sees both rows. Tried using this:

```
ListView1.SelectedIndex = ListView1.Items.Count - 1; ListView1.Items.Add(new ListViewItem("ListView Item"));

But this also does not work. Code: protected void

```
UpdateModeButton_Click(object sender, EventArgs e) { ListView1.UpdateMode = UpdateMode.InsertItem; } protected void InsertButton_Click(object sender, EventArgs e) { ListViewItem item = new ListViewItem("New Item"); ListView1.Items.Add(item); } A: You need to add the new row first and then set the ListViewItem's selected to true like so: protected void InsertButton_Click(object sender, EventArgs e) { ListViewItem item = new ListViewItem("New Item"); item.Selected = true; ListView1.Items.Add(item); }

The stockade was close to the village of New Liskeard and the Six Nations Reserve, and is now under the jurisdiction of the Temiskaming Wildlife Management Area. Camp Sable was later used as a shelter or warehouse for goods being moved to an establishment at Mishkeegogam
